The Contemporary Western Way of War: Strategy, Risk Economy and Civilian Harm

Lecture by

Professor Martin Shaw

University of Roehampton
Author of "The new Western Way of War: Risk-Transfer War and its Crisis in Iraq"

How should we understand contemporary Western warmaking in the light of the military, social and political conditions? What was a historical context of development of warfare from the mode of industrialized total war to one of global surveillance warfare? Can contemporary West be regarded as a unified actor with a common way of warmaking? Are Western interventions wars of choice?
